

My Little LOVE

Every love story starts small. This one started with an 18-pound Shih Tzu named Buster.

My Little Love by Jude Lauren is the true story of a life quietly transformed by one small, stubborn, unforgettable dog. What begins as an ordinary act of pet parenthood becomes something far greater: a bond that reshapes how one woman sees love, loss, and everything in between. There are early mornings and mischief-filled afternoons, quiet companionship and the kind of devotion that asks for nothing in return. And there is, eventually, a goodbye. One that teaches as much about living as it does about letting go.

This is a book about the joy pets bring while they're here, the ache they leave behind, and the strange, beautiful gift of loving something fully even knowing it won't last forever.

Meet Buster

The Mischief-Maker

He wasn't perfect. He chewed things he shouldn't. He barked at nothing. He took up far more space in the bed and in the heart than any 18 pounds should.

Buster is the naughty, fiercely loyal Shih Tzu at the center of My Little Love. Equal parts mischief and devotion. The kind of dog who makes ordinary days feel a little more alive. Before he became a lesson in love, he was simply Buster. This book gives him the introduction he deserves.
